

"Class is the last great taboo."

Colleges and schools recently featuring Class Action speakers and/or workshops include:

- Arizona State University
Tempe, Arizona
- Dartmouth College
Hanover, New Hampshire
- Episcopal Divinity School
Cambridge, Massachusetts
- Lane Community College
Eugene, Oregon
- Mount Holyoke College
South Hadley, Massachusetts
- Park Day School
Oakland, California
- Smith College
Northampton, Massachusetts
- University of Massachusetts
Amherst, Massachusetts
- University of Arizona
Tucson, Arizona
- University of Oregon
Eugene, Oregon

"Class Action combines a trenchant class analysis with opportunities for people to discuss experiences and feelings about class."

—Judith Plaskow, professor of Religious Studies, Manhattan College

"Dr. Yeskel was an engaging, dynamic speaker... Throughout her talk, it was clear her heart and mind were in her voice and words. She spoke of truths and personal experience..."

—Mark Fitzgerald, student, University of Massachusetts

"Collins was able offer students practical suggestions for how they might contribute to struggles for economic justice in our country."

—David Spener, associate professor, Department of Sociology and Anthropology, Trinity University, San Antonio, TX

Talking class on campus

Class differences frequently appear on college campuses, yet there are few venues to discuss their impact on students, staff, and faculty. Class Action speakers and facilitators introduce class and classism through lively, thought-provoking lectures and workshops designed to open dialogue and discussion.

One of Class Action's engaging speakers is Co-director Dr. Felice Yeskel. Dr. Yeskel's speaking style incorporates group participation through open dialogue, encourages discussion, critical analysis and reflection. Yeskel uses her personal story, anecdotes, and economic insight to reveal the insidious nature of class and classism. She has toured the country speaking to more than 50,000 people in 25 states. She has presented hundreds of workshops about economic inequality and about healing the divisions among Americans of different class backgrounds, races, genders, and sexual orientations.

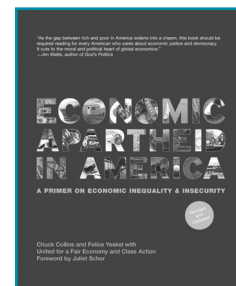

Another dynamic Class Action speaker is Senior Fellow Chuck Collins. Collins is a noted author, activist, and speaker. He co-authored: Wealth and Our Commonwealth, with Bill Gates, Sr., and Robin Hood Was Right, with Pam Rogers and Joan Garner. Chuck Collins makes the complex, macro-economic picture come alive. His commentaries have appeared in the Washington Post, Boston Globe, Houston Chronicle, Providence Journal, and many other daily newspapers. Chuck's articles have appeared in The American Prospect, The Nation, Christian Science Monitor, and numerous other periodicals. He is a commentator on NPR's "Marketplace." Collins is on the editorial board of Dollars and Sense magazine and the board of Sojourners magazine. Additionally Collins is senior scholar at the Institute for Policy Studies.

Collins and Yeskel are both co-founders of United for a Fair Economy and co-authors of Economic Apartheid in America, New Press, 2005.

Contact Class Action to schedule speakers or workshops.

E-mail info@classism.org or call (413) 585-9709, ext. 201.

C | L | A | S | S | ACTION

Building Bridges Across the Class Divide